

The Catherine Wheel - The Only Pub in Bibury

The beautiful Cotswold stone building, stable courtyard and orchard date back to the 15th Century.

In 1803 the family of William Taylor lived and worked as blacksmiths in the building, shoeing horses and making cart wheels. In 1856 the building was bought by J.Hathaway, a Cooper (barrel maker) and beer retailer, and the Catherine Wheel was born. With it's low beams, stone walls and large log fires the inn became a success. Mr Hathaway died leaving the inn to his wife, who sold it to the Nailsworth Brewery Company Ltd in 1899. Since then the inn has changed hands many times but some things remain the same - a warm welcome, good local ales and quality food made from local ingredients.
